

I recommend to you yesterday's editorial in the Arkansas Democrat, reading in part as follows:

"As has been pointed out innumerous times in the Democrat's news and editorial columns, the two-year term for a governor not only increases financial waste, handicaps an incumbent, but it causes needless confusion and becomes an outright nuisance. . . .

"The Council of State Governors says more states are lengthening the term of office for their governors. Effective with the inauguration of its chief executive in January 1951, Connecticut will become the 23rd state to provide a four-year term for governor.

"Arkansans will vote on a four-year term for their governor in the general election in November. However, this proposal includes four-year terms for state, district and county officials."

So much for the Democrat's editorial.

The Star supported the enactment of Arkansas' present double-primary election system, and at that time pointed out the need for four-year terms. We double up on the number of primaries to make sure whoever gets in office commands a majority vote, therefore we ought to lengthen the term so that the total number of elections remains the same.

The waste of private and public funds in running a double campaign every two years is obvious. Although the advertising used in these campaigns looms large in the public mind it's only because it is bunched in a single month. Political advertising averages out only between one and two per cent of the average daily paper's business over a two-year period—and there is less important than any one of several regular commercial accounts.

The major waste, of course, is the unsettling effect too many elections have upon public offices, with resultant inefficiency—not to mention the extraordinary disbursement of public tax funds when the campaign approaches its peak.

The other day I wrote a piece in this column suggesting that higher taxes would be a more effective curb against wartime inflation than any system of rationing, since a lot of money running around loose under rationing merely produces a black market.

I gather from yesterday's Wall Street Journal that the Federal Reserve Board thinks the same way I do. The Wall Street's headlines read:

"Reserve Board Opposes Price Control—Calls for Higher Interest Rates, Much Steeper Taxes, and Tighter Credit."

It makes sense—which is a lot more than some of the politicians do who are running around Washington giving off strange sounds.

You can take money away from the people—but you can't stop 'em from hoarding while they've still got money.

Incidentally, coast-to-coast surveys show that the first wave of panic buying after the outbreak of the Korean war is beginning to die down. Mabe a little squeeze on the pocketbook will keep federal rationing off our collective necks.

2nd Payment Due for Blacktopping

Charles Reyner announced today that payments of the second installment of the paving tax for S. Walnut East 13th, and S. Walker Streets, composing Street Improvement Dist. No. 13 with a block of pavement on East 6th St. and East 9th St. is payable to him on or before Aug. 31 1950, with 5 per cent interest on the entire unpaid balance.

Those persons who paid the entire assessment in 1949 should disregard this notice. Any persons desiring to pay the entire unpaid balance due on their special assessment may do so and save the 5 per cent interest that will thereafter accrue. The Commissioners of St. Improvement Dis. No. 13 executed to the City of Hope a certificate of indebtedness bearing 5 per cent interest on the total unpaid balance due to the City of Hope as the contractor after the conclusion of the collection of the first annual installment in 1949.

This certificate of indebtedness is assigned to The First Natl. Bank of Hope, Ark., and all sums collected will be applied on this indebtedness less payments on the 5 percent administration fund levied by the Board of Assessors in the original assessment.

Senate Approves Record Money Measure

Washington, Aug. 5 — (AP) — Senate passage of a $34,236,932,228 money bill revived the congressional argument today over the value of considering the bulk of federal appropriations in a single measure.

The bill which the senate approved on a voice vote last night — sending it to a senate-house conference committee to be matched with a smaller house measure — contained funds for most government agencies for the 12 months ending next June 30.

It also included foreign aid funds — which the house elected to consider separately.

This was the first experiment with a bill wrapping virtually all government expenditures for a fiscal year into one package; previously funds for each agency had been considered in a separate measure.

Following its passage, some Democrats commented that the system should never have been changed, number of Republicans disputed that.

One of the arguments which resulted in the use of the one-package approach had been that it would speed consideration of appropriation which last year dragged on for weeks past the July 1 target date.

This year, the senate didn't take up the bill until after that date. The measure it passed after four weeks of debate carries $32,052,362,228 in cash and $2,184,570,000 in contract authority.

The total is $1,624,425,920 less than President Truman's budget request, and about half a billion more than was approved by the house — not counting the 4,590,000 in cash and contract authority for foreign programs.

In the final voting, senators rejected 41 to 38; a proposal by Senator McClellan (D-Ark) to trim the Marshall plan five per cent for a cutback of $136,338,073.

The day before, the European recovery plan had been exempted from a 10 per cent slash which trimmed $525,000,000 out of most domestic non-defense spending programs.

As finally approved, the Marshall plan got $2,726,000,000 in new and carryover cash; foreign military aid $1,678,023,729, of which $1,222,500,000 was for the second year of the program, the remainder to liquidate contract authority voted last year.

The American armed services got senate approval for 14,680,000,000 in cash and contract authority.

Nolo Contendere Filed by Lumber Mill Operator

W. D. Hood, McCaskill, lumberman, Friday entered a pleading of nolo contendere in the western district of Arkansas' federal court on a fair labor act violation. Hood entered the plea to three of ten counts against him, the remaining charges were dismissed and Judge Harry J. Lemley continued the hearing until November.

In other action the court reduced the bond fixed against Johnny Bales 32, Shreveport, La., radio hillbilly hymn singer charged with taking a 17-year-old girl across the state line for immoral purposes. The bond was reduced from $3,500 to $2,500.

Bales is charged with bringing a Henderson, Texas waitress from Shreveport to Texarkana for purpose of prostitution. He denied the charges.

Government Outlines Rice Support Plan

Washington, Aug. 5 — (AP) — The agriculture department has announced details of its 1950 rice support program.

The department said yesterday it would support grower prices of 1950 crop rice at an average of $4.58 per 100 pounds or about $2.05 a bushel.

The rates compare with $3.96 and $1.78, respectively, at which last year's crop was supported.

By law the department must support rice at 90 per cent of parity. The parity price has increased since last year as a result of a change in the parity formula and higher non-farm prices.

Growers who comply with planting allotments through loans and purchase agreements in the producing states, including Arkansas, will be eligible for price support.

War Reaches Arkansas Military Units

By The Associated Press
One Arkansas military unit "moved out" perhaps for eventual combat, early today (Saturday) as the Korean fighting came over closer home.

AUSTIN BITTERLY DENOUNCES SOVIET CHARGES

American delegate Warren Austin gestures vehemently as he answers Soviet delegate Jacob Malik's charge that the U. S. plotted aggression in Korea. The bitter denunciation took place during Security Council meeting at Lake Success, during which Russia suffered its second major diplomatic defeat when council voted down their demand to settle the Communist China problem before dealing with problem of peace in Korea.

The unit departing group was the marine reserves' 15th infantry battalion.

Its departure from Little Rock for active duty at a West Coast training center was only part of the activity along the Arkansas military "front."

Arkansas members of the 39th division (Arkansas-Louisiana National Guard) left their home stations today for two weeks of war-intensified training at Camp Polk, La., beginning tomorrow.

Another Arkansas reserve unit was alerted yesterday for early active duty. It is the 332nd armored battalion, and word came as it was concluding its regular summer encampment at Fort Hood, Tex. The 332nd is the latest of several reserve and non-divisional national guard units to be called. Commanded by Lt. Col. George Makris of Pine Bluff, the battalion has components at Pine Bluff, Little Rock and Fort Smith.

Last night members of the First army reserve unit to be mobilized for the "liberation" of all Chinese territory, including Tibet and Formosa. Last January, Russia's two biggest newspapers, Pravda and Izvestia, announced that as Red

China's aim.

Tibet is on the fringes of China, Russia, India and Kashmir. High in the windy Himalays, it has a population of about 3,000,000. It is ruled by Lamas, Buddhist monks. For centuries it has remained isolated from the world, a lone of toward foreigners. China has claimed suzerainty over Tibet since the 17th century, but the country — for all practical purposes — has been self-governing.

Most Americans know Tibet as the "Shangri-La" of a best-selling novel, or as the famous "hump" over which supplies were flown to China during the war against Japan.

Tibet's top ranking monk is the 18-year-old Dalai Lama who, as early as August, 1948, conducted prayer meetings to protect Tibet from communism.

For months, the Red propaganda line from Peiping has plumped for the "liberation" of all Chinese territory, including Tibet and Formosa. Last January, Russia's two biggest newspapers, Pravda and Izvestia, announced that as Red

China's aim.

The new army call was limited to enlisted men under the revised quota, which was upped from an original call of 214 men.

Departure of the marine battalion last night was preceded by an official send-off at which Governor McMath, a marine combat veteran and now a marine reserve officer said that he regretted "I'm not going with you."

Mr. Truman proposed to congress that the $5,000,000,000 in new revenue be raised this way:

$3,000,000,000 from individual incomes; $1,500,000,000 from corporation incomes; the remaining 500,000, from other revenue — raising provisions already approved by the house. These latter provisions were a part of the $10,100,000,000 excise tax cut passed before the Korean war started, and later junked.

Moreover, some members think the committee later may knock down the house provision for a withholding tax on corporation dividends — a provision which would be examined at Little Rock and Texarkana to assure that the quota is filled. Local draft boards were notified yesterday of the number of additional men each must furnish for examinations under the revised quota, which was upped from an original call of 214 men.

The senate group approved tax law revisions intended to boost federal revenues by about $148,000,000, it turned down house-approved changes — some of them proposed by the White House — that would have delivered an extra $176,000,000.

The senate group agreed with the house to end what Mr. Truman told congress is the practice of some motion picture producers — creating a corporation, then disbanding it after producing one picture, so that those participating can pay capital gains taxes instead of the much stiffer income taxes.

Polio Epidemic Exists in Washington

Fayetteville, Aug. 5 — (AP) — A polio epidemic exists in Washington county health department and the Washington county medical society said today in a joint statement. There have been 17 definite cases in the county this year and seven in the last week, the statement said. It cited a number of precautions for citizens to take.

Local National Guards to Leave for Training

The local Company A, 153rd Infantry of the Arkansas National Guard, headed by Captain Dorsey Fuller will leave this weekend for Camp Polk, La., for two weeks in combined training with the U. S. Army's 39th Division.

Sino Reds Plan Tibet Invasion Is Report

Hong Kong, Aug. 5 — (AP) — Plans for a Chinese Red invasion of ancient Tibet, lofty land of the Lamas, were reported today by a pro-Communist newspaper.

The Chinese language Wen Wei Pao printed what it said was a report by one-eyed Gen. Liu Po-Cheng that Communist forces soon "will march into Tibet."

Liu, commander of the Chinese Communist second field army, was quoted in a report to the Communist southwest military and administrative committee, which ended a five-day meeting in Chungking July 31.

He said such a move would be aimed at driving out the "aggressive influence of American imperialism" and "to consolidate the Western line of national defense," the newspaper reported.

For months, the Red propaganda line from Peiping has plumped for the "liberation" of all Chinese territory, including Tibet and Formosa. Last January, Russia's two biggest newspapers, Pravda and Izvestia, announced that as Red

The new army call was limited to enlisted men who are not in regular reserve units. The order called for 21 months of duty. The army didn't say, but presumably the reserves will go with units which already have been called up.

And the army said all reservists will be screened to weed out Communist sympathizers.

As for the navy enlisted men, the navy said its order applies to regular navy men and naval reserves except one-year enlistees who came in under the selective service act.

The navy also said it now will accept applications for reserve commissioners from doctors, dentists, nurses, medical interns, medical and dental students and electronics specialists.

In asking congress for an additional $50,000,000 worth of naval planes, Mr. Truman also sought $170,000,000 for army and navy public construction and $35,000,000 for the defense department's emergency fund.

The jeep climbed up the road through another pass but there were no refugees here. The road was deserted and in the valley a village burned — fired by shells and mortar fire.

This brings to $16,500,000,000 the total amount of additional military funds asked by the President since the start of the Korean war.

DOROTHY DIX

For Adults Only

In a scientific study of marriage it has been found that middle-age marriages are happier than those contracted earlier in life. This indicates that intelligence goes farther than romance in making marriage a success.

This conclusion is amply borne out by the fact that it is a matter of common observation that, taking them by large, widows and widowers make the best wives and husbands, and that second marriages rarely end in the divorce court. This is true even of divorced people, for those who could not get along with their first mates seem able to get along with almost any sort of mate when they marry again.

Of course, there is a glamour about young love, that elderly affection never possesses. Twenty is the time for circling wings and star dust and the chanting of the angel choir that forty never sees or hears; but it is also the time of awakening from a dope dream, the time of mud-slinging and bitter vituperation, and if the old do not get the kick out of marriage the young do, they also escape many of its bruises.

Eliminates Risks

There are many reasons why late marriages should be, as a rule, happier than young ones. The first is, of course, that it eliminates many of the risks of marriage.

The boy and girl who get married take a double chance on their marriages being successes. They not only do not know what the children they are marrying are going to turn into when they are grown up, but they have not the faintest idea of what they are going to be themselves.

The mature man and woman do not thus leave this fate on the knees of the gods when they marry. Their tastes and habits are formed. Their characters settled. And when they choose their mates, they are almost sure to pick out someone who has the qualities they desire, instead of trusting to luck that their husbands and wives will somehow, somehow, turn into what they want them to be.

Then too those who marry later in life are ready for marriage. They have had their playtime and they are fed up with running around trying to amuse themselves, and they are ready to settle down by their own firesides. They have had their fill of flirtations and light love. All they want is the enduring love of the one man or the one woman on whom they have set their hearts.

Young Lack Discipline

Young people also bring the discipline of life to marriage, and that is something the youngsters lack. They have learned self-control. They have learned how to play fair, how to give and take. They have learned tact in handling situations, how to give the soft answer that turns away wrath, and how to put things in a way that will rob them of their unpleasantness.

We talk about the adaptability of youth. There is no such thing. All boys and girls are intolerant. Determined to have their own way.

Nothing but time and experience teaches us to walk around a stone wall instead of trying to butt it down with our heads. When you see a middle-aged couple who are always quarreling, it is the hangover from their early marriage when each was trying to make the other over according to his or her heart's desire, and when every word was the fighting word.

Those who have married late in life live in peace and harmony because they have learned how to adjust themselves to new people and new situations, and they know that their happiness depends upon their sidestepping each other's little peculiarities and handling each other with finesse.

The mature man and woman do not expect the impossible. They don't expect marriage to be an earthly paradise or for husbands and wives to be angels. Hence they are satisfied with a home that they have to build up with their labor, but that is a shelter where they are warm and safe and snug, and with husbands and wives who have a thousand faults, but who give them love and companionship and loyalty and fidelity.

All of which boils down into saying that marriage is a game for adults. It is no sport for kiddies.

Sunday School Lesson

By William E. Gilroy

One-hundred-years or more before the great era and succession of Hebrew prophets began with Amos and Hosea, two memorable prophets, Elijah and Elisha, had done to the messengers of Ahab, Jesus had replied, "Ye know not what spirit ye are of." And the picture of Jesus blessing the little children is strangely and beautifully in contrast with that of Elijah, cursing the children who mocked him.

Much of the glory of Israel's integrity in that ancient world is associated with the higher moral conceptions relating to family life, and the relation of the sexes. The Old Testament records much concerning romantic love.

But such moral conceptions and foundations need constant safeguarding, as they do in our modern world. The devotees of Baal, under various other names are still with us. Those who are on the Lord's side have much to learn, and much inspiration to find, from the example of the morally earnest and fearless Elijah. The incidents of his life have become rich symbols of zeal for God, and God's ways for man.

Jesus to call down fire from heaven and consume villages who had used him inhospitably, as Elijah had done to the messengers of Ahab, Jesus had replied, "Ye know not what spirit ye are of." And the picture of Jesus blessing the little children is strangely and beautifully in contrast with that of Elijah, cursing the children who mocked him.

The story of Elijah and Elisha differs considerably from that of the later prophets in the extent to which it is permeated with miraculous and wonder-working incidents. Some of these incidents ought to be read in the light of the New Testament.

When James and John wanted to be like Elijah and Elisha, they found plenty of evil to rebuke.

Their story is interwoven with that of kings as typified by King Ahab, who stood between a line of evil predecessors and successors. And to the weakness of the King was added the strength in evil of the fanatical and ruthless idler, Jezebel, whose name has become a byword for wickedness in women.

It should ever be borne in mind that the prophets' concern for purity or religion was not related just to ritual observance, or their conception of one religion as against another. Idolatry meant corruption and impurity of life. The various references to sodomy in the record is an indication of the moral depravity against which the prophets fought.

Expect Meat Prices to Decline

Washington, Aug. 4—(P)—The agriculture department expects prices of meat—particularly pork and the better grades of beef—to decline in the fall.

In a report on the livestock situation, the department said output of meat is now at the year's low level, but that it should increase considerably in the October-December quarter.

The prospective increase in supplies, the agency said, should pull prices down from current peaks, but not as low as a year ago.

"Strengthening consumer demand due to increased defense programs may limit some of the seasonal decline in prices associated with increased fall marketings of meat animals," the report said.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler Copyright, 1950

By King Features Syndicate.

New York Aug. 3 — On Sunday, July 3, the New York Herald Tribune and the New York Times devoted the whole of page one of their respective ostensible literary review sections to whooping propaganda for a self-serving book by Owen Lattimore, who had on the senate floor been called the top Russian spy by Senator Joe McCarthy. In each case there was a break-over into the inside pages.

The only other action in the American had little to do with the pennant race as sixth-place Chicago shut out seventh-place Philadelphia, 1-0. Randy Gummett, hitting his stride after a slow start, blanked the A's with only four singles.

Eddie Robinson's triple a fly ball that right fielder Elmer Valo overran, followed by Hank Majes

Four runs in the first inning

tucked the game away for Detroit, Ed Lopat, shooting for his 14th win, got only one man out. He gave up four runs on three hits, a walk and his own error. Fine relief work by Fred Sanford and a passing-fair job by Joe Page were too late. The final score was Detroit 5 New York 2.

Johnny Mize's 12th homer, following a walk to Hank Bauer, provided the only Yankee scores in the fourth inning. Houette man allowed only six hits, struck out five and walked only two.
